The Plant-Cadden campany took. quarters new occupied by Utley & Jones, at 145 Main street. Very shortly Jones, at 145 Main street. Very shortly afterwards, it became necessary to seek larger oparters, and the large, medern five story building was erected and opened on the opposite side, 145-145 Main street. In a short period of years this again proved to be too small for the requirements of this progressive boune, and the two top offers of the Johnson building were made part of this then very important institution. Three years ago the entire Quinebaug building, at 125-142 Main street and 154-169 Water street, was opened to the public. During its opening three days, more than 15,800 people attended and in less than three years, those quarters again seemed three years, these quarters again seemed too small, making it necessary to secure the top floor of the Bill block on Shetucket street connecting same on the Water street side with the present Quineboug building.
